CSA MEMBERS' ROLE IN SECURITIES ENFORCEMENT

MESSAGE FROM THE CHAIR

I am pleased to present the Canadian Securities Administrators' (CSA) 2021-2022 Enforcement Report.

Enforcement is a key pillar of the CSA's mandate, and this Report is an opportunity to update market participants, our industry partners and the Canadian public on our enforcement priorities and results.

This past year, CSA members took actions to detect, disrupt and deter wrongdoing and hold securities law violators accountable. We commenced 59 matters involving 139 respondents and concluded 52 cases involving 93 respondents. Importantly, 44 individuals and 13 companies were banned from participating in the capital markets.

CSA members used various tactics to disrupt ongoing and potential illegal activity. Disruption involves intervening as soon as possible to protect investors and minimize harm. This report outlines several tactics used to either disrupt potentially harmful or illegal activity or to prevent it.

One example of disruption is investor alerts, which warn the public about potential harmful or illegal activity. This past year, the CSA issued 236 investor alerts. Many CSA members also use caution lists to name individuals or companies performing activities that may pose a risk to investors. Other preventative methods include sending inquiry or caution letters to a person or company whose activities raise concerns, and collaborating with law enforcement to make unannounced visits or virtual calls to offices of companies that may not be complying with securities laws.

We issued 61 interim cease-trade and asset-freeze orders. While not intended to disrupt misconduct, asset-freeze orders work to prevent a person or company from transferring assets and to increase the chances that there will be funds available to pay any sanctions that might be imposed by a panel or tribunal.

Our members also pursued all available avenues to collect outstanding monetary sanctions, underscoring the deterrent effects of the penalties and disgorgements imposed by our panels or tribunals.

Our efforts were further supported by actions taken by others. We value those who come forward with high-quality information that enables CSA members to take timely action. Whistleblowers, who expose complex securities misconduct that may not otherwise come to light, continued to play a vital role in the enforcement process this past fiscal year.

As CSA members pursued enforcement actions, the pandemic persisted. However, it only reinforced our adaptability and strengthened the resolve of CSA members to collaborate as part of a relentless focus on investigating and taking action.

CSA members provided 73 referrals on enforcement matters to each other and provided 24 instances of assistance in enforcement cases. We worked closely with other regulators and agencies in Canada and around the world to share insights and information to help advance investigations.

Members collaborated globally as part of their role on the International Organization of Securities Commissions (IOSCO), the international body that brings together the world's securities regulators, and the North American Securities Administrators Association (NASAA), the oldest international organization devoted to investor protection.

The Chair of the IOSCO Screening Committee is a CSA member – the second Canadian delegate in a row to assume this position. In this role, he is helping to evaluate potential signatories and foster the exchange of information among securities regulators around the world for the purpose of enforcement.

This past fiscal year, several CSA members were part of a 20-country investigation that resulted in the United States Securities and Exchange Commission charging defendants for participating in multi-year fraudulent penny stock schemes that generated more than USD$194 million in illicit proceeds. Additionally, CSA members engaged in a number of NASAA initiatives, including virtual investigative training to help support cross-jurisdictional enforcement efforts and NASAA Connect, an online community that provides a place for members to share information, collaborate and ask and respond to questions.

Building on that collaboration, we continued to find new ways to improve our market analytics capacity and our technological capabilities to support our investigations and tackle sophisticated and evolving threats. As part of our actions, we refined our techniques to research and analyze crypto asset trading to better understand the full ecosystem and identify opportunities to disrupt misconduct at every stage, from investor solicitation to advertising to investing.

We collaborated with third parties, such as law enforcement, the Canadian Anti-Fraud Centre, website domain registrars and crypto exchanges to root out misconduct and target fraudsters who lure investors into scams. Unfortunately, this past fiscal year, investors reported instances of high-pressure sales tactics being used to lure Canadians into fraudulent investment offerings, particularly related to crypto assets. The ease of using social media and the internet to disseminate false information, as well as the escalating market interest in crypto assets, were likely factors.

The Enforcement Technology and Analytics Working Group, comprised of CSA members across the country, developed a reference framework on the establishment of digital forensic laboratories in a cloud-based environment.

We developed and conducted training around novel technology and analytics issues and trends to ensure all jurisdictions have the latest insights to improve their enforcement capabilities, such as data mining the web, application programming interfaces for crypto asset trading platforms, and the use of decentralized finance technologies.

The Market Analysis Platform (MAP), launched in late 2020, is now used by all CSA members across the country to access and analyze trading activity. This past year, we further enhanced the efficiency and speed with which we can detect suspicious trading activity and analyze market abuse. We are integrating other data sources into the system to capture a broader array of analytics and insights, including derivatives data, which we expect to have in place later this year.

This was my final year as Chair of the CSA. Over my seven year term it has been a pleasure collaborating with other regulatory authorities and agencies to advance enforcement efforts, both in Canada and around the world. In particular, I'd like to thank the hard-working and determined enforcement staff from our member jurisdictions, including crucial support from our CSA Secretariat team, who work tirelessly to identify wrongdoing, protect Canadians from misconduct and strengthen market integrity. I am proud to have served as the CSA Chair and I look forward to continuing to help drive the CSA's mandate in my continued role as President and CEO of the Autorité des marchés financiers.

SPOTLIGHT ON SANCTIONS AND COLLECTION METHODS

CSA members pursue all avenues available to them to collect outstanding monetary sanctions, including:

- Registering orders in the courts and enforcing them as court judgments;
- Conducting interviews, obtaining financial records and filing lawsuits;
- Leveraging CSA member staff dedicated to collections;
- Hiring external services, including private investigators, collection specialists and agencies, bailiffs and legal counsel;
- Garnisheeing wages, seizing and selling debtors' assets;
- Working collaboratively with law enforcement and other regulatory agencies;
- Publicly posting a list of delinquent debtors; and
- In Québec, allowing for compensatory work to pay quasi-criminal fines, when applicable.

However, imposing monetary sanctions and collecting those sanctions are entirely different matters. In some cases, monetary sanctions do not reflect a person or company's ability to pay. Respondents often do not have assets to collect because:

- They may never have had or may not have retained the amount of money they are required to pay;
- Other amounts owing by them, such as outstanding taxes, can take legal priority over collection of sanctions;
- There may be legal constraints on collecting from them if they declare bankruptcy;
- They may have forfeited assets as part of a criminal process; and
- Funds may be in another country from which they are not recoverable.

Where assets do exist, securities regulators give priority to returning money to investors.

PREVENTATIVE AND DISRUPTIVE MEASURES

CEASE-TRADE AND ASSET-FREEZE ORDERS

CSA members protect investors by issuing or obtaining interim cease-trade orders or freezing assets while they conduct investigations. Certain jurisdictions have the legislative authority to halt trading on public exchanges when they suspect or identify irregular trading of securities or derivatives, in turn stopping potential market manipulation.

Asset-freeze orders help prevent the loss of assets – for example, bank deposits and personal property, including vehicles and buildings – pending the completion of investigations.

CSA members imposed trading and other restrictions on

94 RESPONDENTS THROUGH
61 INTERIM CEASE-TRADE
AND ASSET-FREEZE ORDERS.

15 ASSET-FREEZE ORDERS WERE ISSUED RELATING TO 61 RESPONDENTS

including a total of $80.9 million in bank accounts.

INVESTOR WARNINGS AND ALERTS

CSA members issue investor warnings and alerts and update their caution lists through their respective websites, email, social media channels and the CSA website. These alerts inform the public about individuals and companies that are acting in harmful ways. Often, the alerts relate to foreign businesses that are not registered to trade securities in Canada but are targeting Canadian investors.

CSA MEMBERS
ISSUED 236
INVESTOR ALERTS.

MARKET BANS

As a tool to prevent further misconduct and harm, a tribunal or panel can impose market bans on an individual or company when they have violated securities laws. Individuals or companies can be banned from trading or purchasing, registration, using exemptions, acting as a director or officer, advising in securities, investor relations, or acting in a management or consultative capacity in connection with activities in the market.

44 INDIVIDUALS AND
13 COMPANIES WERE BANNED FROM PARTICIPATING IN THE CAPITAL MARKETS.

52% of individuals and 100% of companies were banned permanently.

All other bans ranged between 1 and 20 years, with many of those bans extending until the full monetary sanction is paid.

TACKLING THE CHALLENGE OF RECIDIVISM

Repeat offenders, or recidivists*, are a reality in every legal system. CSA members collaborate to identify recidivists across Canada, and impose fair, credible, and progressive sanctions that are proportionate to each case and aim to be more severe than those incurred by first-time violators.

Investigations of potential recidivists can lead to administrative proceedings, quasi-criminal prosecution, or referral of the case to other authorities for criminal prosecution.

*A recidivist is someone sanctioned for breaching securities laws after being previously sanctioned for a securities violation by a securities regulator or the court.

WHISTLEBLOWER PROGRAMS

Several CSA members have whistleblower programs that enable individuals and employees to report possible securities laws violations.

These programs offer key protections, including confidentiality, the option to report anonymously and anti-reprisal measures. These innovative programs continue to provide valuable information about complex securities misconduct that may not otherwise have come to light.

that were identified in FY2021/2022

WHAT WE DO AND HOW WE DO IT

The CSA plays a vital role in ensuring that Canada's capital markets are considered among the world's most fair and efficient.

By deploying sophisticated investigative tools and techniques and strengthening connections with law enforcement, financial regulators, global securities regulators and each other, we anticipate and respond to emerging trends in the capital markets. That collaboration is a crucial ingredient in fulfilling our core enforcement mission of protecting investors from unfair, improper or fraudulent practices.

CSA MEMBERS' ROLE IN SECURITIES ENFORCEMENT

Given the increasingly complex securities landscape and the evolving nature of threats, enforcement demands a highly collaborative approach to protect Canadian investors.

In addition to local enforcement actions, the CSA Enforcement Committee and related teams coordinate multijurisdictional investigations and share tools and techniques to help members investigate and prosecute securities laws violations that span multiple jurisdictions. The Committee provides a forum to share enforcement intelligence, identify trends and threats, and exchange ideas and processes.

The CSA and its members undertake initiatives through working groups, task forces and forums, such as:

ENFORCEMENT TECHNOLOGY AND ANALYTICS WORKING GROUP

The Working Group facilitates regular, cooperative information sharing on the use of technology by enforcement staff, for such purposes as electronic evidence management, eDiscovery, advanced analytics, surveillance, and work product management issues. In consultation with subject matter experts, the Working Group also identifies technology trends and monitors developments in the field of computer science (i.e. artificial intelligence and machine learning) with a focus on the development and implementation of detection tools.

INVESTMENT FRAUD TASK FORCE (EMERGING ISSUES)

Responds to emerging investment frauds and threats with coordinated and highly targeted initiatives in a timely fashion to protect Canadian investors. Specific focuses include forex and crypto assets trading scams.

COOPERATION WITH FEDERAL AGENCIES WORKING GROUP

Explores new cooperation opportunities with federal agencies to strengthen the detection, prosecution and deterrence of white-collar crime and securities laws violations.

FORUMS AND OTHER INITIATIVES

This includes guiding the development of the Market Analysis Platform; participating in the Cross-Border Microcap Fraud Initiative (CBMFI), which seeks to eradicate pump-and-dump schemes and to take action against the perpetrators; executing best practices through the Virtual Hearings and Investigations Forum, which focuses on making participation easier and more accessible, particularly for those in remote locations; and strategizing on the detection, disruption and deterrence of insider trading and market manipulation.
